MURDER ON THE ORIENT EXPRESS

The Shrewsbury High School Performing Arts Department presented Agatha Christie's Murder on the Orient Express. Just after midnight, a snowdrift stops the Orient Express in its tracks. The luxurious train is surprisingly full for the time of the year, but by the morning it is one passenger fewer. An American tycoon lies dead in his compartment, stabbed eight times, his door locked from the inside. Isolated and with a killer in their midst, the passengers rely on detective Hercule Poirot to identify the murderer – in case he or she decides to strike again.

We are both so proud of the man you have become. We can't wait to see what you do next!

XOXO, Mom, Dad, Alexa, and Jax

Let them judge you, let them think wrongly
 They talk behind your back, other people's thoughts are not your problem
 You remain kind,
 committed to love and freedom.
 It doesn't matter what they say or do Don't doubt your worth and the beauty of your existential honesty
 Just shine like you shine every day

When it comes to strong girls and brave women, the only girl that comes to my mind is you, the girl who is the supporter and the only safe support for her family and works tirelessly for her and her family's future just like men. You are the only girl who didn't run away from fear and came back and faced it. If yesterday Sima Samar was a brave woman of Afghanistan, today you are.
 Today you are hope for the future.

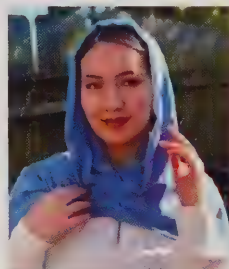

My sweetheart girl.

It was quite a while, that me and your mom had dreams about this blessed day. We had no doubt that one day you will make our dream come true. Shine bright like always! Don't forget every time you earn a new success, celebrate it, but don't stop and continue your way. Wish you all the best!

THE WEEK Junior YEAR IN REVIEW

IN PARTNERSHIP WITH Lifetouch

MOST
STORIES OF 2023-2024!

10 historic moments

Music milestones, fashion trends, and Hollywood news shaped the US and the world.

WOW!
A Taylor Swift concert in July shook the ground so hard it registered like a small earthquake.

Taylor Swift breaks records

Taylor Swift has been toppling records and delighting fans around the world. Swift, age 34, won dozens of awards, became the most streamed artist of 2023 on Spotify and Apple Music, and was named Time's Person of the Year.

She kicked off her global Eras tour last March, and it became a worldwide phenomenon. It was the highest-grossing musical tour ever and the first to earn more than $1 billion. Last July, Swift's Speak Now (Taylor's Version) was released, becoming her 12th number one album. With that, she set the record for the most number one albums by a woman on the Billboard 200 chart. Her October release, 1989 (Taylor's Version), also took the top spot on Billboard's list. That same month, Taylor Swift: The Eras Tour movie came to theaters, and became the highest-grossing concert film ever.

The year 2024 started just as strong: At the Grammys in February, Midnights won Album of the Year, making her the first artist to earn that award four times. She also announced the April release of her new album, The Tortured Poets Department.

Maui rebuilds after massive fires

Maui, one of Hawaii's largest islands, has been rebuilding after the nation's deadliest wildfires in more than 100 years caused massive destruction. More than 7,000 people lost their homes, and 100 people died. Much of Lahaina, a historic fishing town and popular tourist destination, burned down.

The fire began after heavy winds knocked down a power line, setting dried grass on fire. The area was experiencing severe drought, so the flames spread quickly. Once the fires started, Maui's emergency management agency did not activate its outdoor sirens, which sound during dangerous situations and can be heard up to half a mile away. The state government is investigating why the alarms didn't go off.

Officials said it could take years for Lahaina to fully recover. Many groups are pitching in, and the Hawaii Community Foundation's Maui Strong Fund has raised more than $150 million to help rebuild homes and businesses. Visitors have been welcomed back to support the island's tourism industry, and tourists have been encouraged to help Maui residents by shopping at small local businesses.

Hip-hop celebrates a big anniversary

Hip-hop, the musical genre that began in Black and Latino neighborhoods in New York City, turned 50 in 2023. On August 11, 1973, an 18-year-old DJ named Kool Herc introduced a new technique at a party. Using vinyl records and two record players, he played beats from one song and layered them over a different song.

In 1979, the first hip-hop record, "Rapper's Delight" by the Sugarhill Gang, was released and became a hit. In the 1980s, rap group Run-DMC helped hip-hop go mainstream. In the 2000s, Run-DMC and the group Grandmaster Flash and the Furious Five were inducted into the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame.

To mark 50 years of hip-hop, museums across the US put on exhibits and major awards shows included tributes to the genre. A Hip Hop 50 Live concert was held in New York City, and the televised Grammy Salute to 50 Years of Hip-Hop featured performances from nearly 60 different acts.

War in the Middle East

An ongoing war in the Middle East continued into 2024. The conflict began on October 7, 2023, when Hamas, a Palestinian terrorist group, attacked Israel, a country on the eastern shore of the Mediterranean Sea. In response, Israel attacked the Gaza Strip, a territory bordered by Israel and Egypt where Hamas is based. Palestinians and Israelis have had a long-standing dispute over who controls certain land in the area, including Gaza.

During the fighting, many world leaders became involved in trying to end the conflict and supply humanitarian aid to people in Gaza. Leaders from the US and Qatar helped negotiate a brief ceasefire in November, during which Hamas released more than 100 hostages it captured during the initial attack. In exchange, Israel released nearly 250 Palestinian prisoners who were being held in Israeli jails.

Throughout the conflict, demonstrations and vigils have been held in the US and around the globe to call for peace in the region.

Color of the year for 2024

Pantone, the color consulting company, revealed Peach Fuzz as its Color of the Year for 2024. It said the soft color, which falls between pink and orange hues, radiates warmth and captures people's desire to nurture themselves and one another. Pantone researches a variety of emerging trends to make its choice, which can influence fashion, design, and other areas in the year ahead. The pastel Peach Fuzz marks a shift from other recent Pantone Colors of the Year. The 2023 choice was the vibrant Viva Magenta, and in 2022 it was Very Peri, a bright purple.

Actors and writers end their strikes

For much of 2023, Hollywood actors and writers did not work while their unions were on strike. On November 9, 2023, after 118 days, actors for TV shows and movies ended their strike—the longest in Hollywood history.

The union representing the performers (Screen Actors Guild–American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, or SAG–AFTRA) reached an agreement with the film and TV companies who hire them (Alliance of Motion Picture and Television Producers, or AMPTP). Under the agreement, actors received a pay increase of 7% and studios agreed to pay them for future viewings of their shows on streaming services, among other points.

Members of the Writers Guild of America (WGA), a union of writers for TV shows and movies, also went on strike for several months in 2023. That strike ended on September 27 when WGA reached an agreement with AMPTP.

With actors and writers able to start working again, the $134 billion industry returned to creating films and TV shows. Celebrities could also resume promoting their movies and TV shows on social media and red carpets—two things they weren't allowed to do while the strike was happening.

Messi mania arrives in the US

In a major win for US soccer fans, Argentinian soccer legend Lionel Messi signed a contract to play for Inter Miami CF, a Major League Soccer club. A sold-out crowd of about 20,000 fans attended the ceremony Inter Miami held to welcome their new player.

Messi, age 36, has won a record eight Ballon d'Or awards, which are given out every year to recognize the world's best male soccer player. He led Argentina to the World Cup title in 2022 and the Copa America, the South American continental championship, in 2021. He has scored 106 goals for Argentina, the most in the country's history and the third-highest of any male soccer player in the world.

At the club level, Messi spent most of his career with FC Barcelona in Spain, winning several major championships with them, including Spain's national cup competition, the Copa Del Rey, seven times. He moved to the French club Paris Saint-Germain in 2021 and won two French league titles with that team.

Upon joining Inter Miami in July, Messi had an immediate impact. The team won a record 12 games in a row. It clinched the 2023 Leagues Cup title in August, the first time it had ever won a major trophy. Messi was injured during a game in September and wasn't able to play much after that. In November, the team ended the season 14th in the 15-team Eastern Conference.

“World treasures” added to UN list

The United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) announced that it had added 46 new items to its List of Intangible Cultural Heritage. The list includes “world treasures” that have been determined to be worthy of safeguarding.

UNESCO plays an important role in shaping the idea of cultural heritage, which it calls “our legacy from the past, what we live with today, and what we pass on to future generations.” The list includes traditions, performing arts, rituals, events, objects, and crafts that have “outstanding universal value to humanity.”

Recent additions include glassblowing in Syria; elechek, the creation of traditional female headwear in Kyrgyzstan; a grain dish called harees in the United Arab Emirates, Saudi Arabia, and Oman; and wooden boat-building in Grenada. The performances that were added include Italian opera; a folk dance called garba in the Gujarat state of India; the Junkanoo festival in the Bahamas; and a Polish dance called the polonaise.

Boom in secondhand fashion

Old clothes are new again, thanks to secondhand shopping. Powered by the spending habits of Generation Z (people born between the years 1997 and 2012), the used clothing market is booming.

A recent report found that the secondhand market in the US is expected to reach $70 billion by 2027, with $28 billion spent at traditional thrift shops and donation centers and $42 billion going to resale apps, sites, and stores (like Depop, Poshmark, and Buffalo Exchange)—as well as individual brands’ own resale programs, like Levi’s SecondHand, Carhartt Reworked, and Juicy Couture’s ReJuiced.

Gen Zers tend to look for good deals on clothing and to care about both sustainability and personal style. An estimated 20% of items in their wardrobes are secondhand.

Major win at famous dog show

A petit basset griffon Vendéen named Buddy Holly won the top prize at the 147th Westminster Kennel Club (WKC) Dog Show—the first of his breed to ever do so. The annual event is the nation’s most prestigious dog show and was held at the USTA Billie Jean King National Tennis Center in Queens, New York.

At the 2023 competition, Buddy Holly was awarded the first-place trophy known as Best in Show. Prior to the final round, the 6-year-old from California had won in the hound group. He displayed physical features that are important to his breed, such as a mustache and long eyebrows.

Most important, said a WKC spokesperson, Buddy Holly had the confident, friendly attitude that dogs of his breed are known for. “I have dreamed of this since I was 9 years old,” Janice Hayes, one of the dog’s owners, told The New York Times in an interview about his win. She said he would retire from competition so he could go back to being a regular dog.

Simone Biles

At the Artistic Gymnastics World Championships in Belgium in October, Simone Biles, age 27, became the most decorated gymnast, male or female, in the sport's history. There, she won four individual medals, bringing her total medal count from the Olympics and Worlds to 37. She also led the US women's team to gold at Worlds. These achievements came after she took two years off from competing to focus on her mental health. Biles said afterward that it was not about the medals: "I had to prove to myself that I could still get out here."

Adam Sandler

For actor, comedian, writer, and producer Adam Sandler, 2023 was a year of honors and new releases. In March, he was awarded the Mark Twain Prize for American Humor, which pays tribute to a person's lifetime achievement in comedy. Sandler also produced and starred in two popular Netflix family comedies. You Are So Not Invited to My Bat Mitzvah came out in August and featured Sandler and some members of his family in leading roles. In November, the animated musical Leo was released with Sandler voicing the lead role of a fifth-grade classroom's pet lizard.

Bobbi Wilson

When Bobbi Wilson, a then 9-year-old from New Jersey, learned that an invasive insect species called spotted lanternflies was damaging trees in her area, she took action. She created a homemade repellent that allowed her to kill and collect the insect. Her collection of 27 lanternflies was officially entered into the database of Yale University's Peabody Museum of Natural History in early 2023, and Wilson was named a donor scientist. She told The Week Junior that her wish is to inspire people to help the environment. "We can all do our part to save the ecosystem," she said.

Endangered Species Act marks 50 years

On December 28, the Endangered Species Act (ESA) marked its 50th anniversary. The landmark law, passed in 1973, protects animals and plants at risk of dying out. When the population of a species declines enough to be considered endangered or threatened, it is added to the ESA's list and the US government is required to create a plan to help it recover. The plan can include protecting the species' habitat and blocking activities, such as logging and drilling, that would disrupt its recovery. The ESA has saved 99% of the animals and plants on its list from extinction.

The bald eagle was one of the first species protected by the ESA. By 1963, the population had dropped to 417 nesting pairs. Thanks to the ESA's protections, there are now more than 71,000 nesting pairs. Other success stories include the American alligator, peregrine falcon, El Segundo blue butterfly, and green sea turtle.

In 2023, zoos, aquariums, schools, museums, and libraries celebrated the ESA's anniversary with special exhibits and events. An awards reception honored people working to protect threatened and endangered species, and a series of murals was unveiled across the US.

Big bear is crowned

Fat Bear Week 2023 took place from October 4 through 10, with a colossal female named 128 "Grazer" taking this year's title. Fat Bear Week is held annually to celebrate brown bears in Alaska's Katmai National Park as they put on weight before hibernating for the winter. Fans vote online for the bulkiest bears.

Grazer, a first-time champion, triumphed over 11 other bears. She is considered a top salmon catcher in the park and has raised two litters of cubs. The week before her victory, a first-year bear named 806 "Spring Cub" won the Fat Bear Junior contest for the largest cub.

Overall, 1,382,783 votes were cast in October, a new record for the event. "For bears, fat equals success," Katmai National Park said about Grazer.

World's first amphibian pollinators

For the first time, scientists in Brazil believe they have discovered a frog that pollinates plants. Pollinators are animals, such as bees, that carry pollen from one plant to another. Before now, no amphibians were known to be pollinators.

Most frogs eat insects and other small creatures, but some include plants in their diet. Scientists noticed Xenohyla truncata, tiny yellow-orange tree frogs in Brazil, plunging their bodies into the flowers of the Brazilian milk fruit tree to drink its nectar. Afterward, they had pollen grains stuck to their bodies. When they hopped to another flower, the frogs brought the pollen with them.

"This was amazing," said study author Carlos Henrique de-Oliveira-Nogueira. "The species meets some of the requirements to be a pollinator, but we still need further study to actually prove this."

Famous pandas return to China

The Smithsonian's National Zoo and Conservation Biology Institute in Washington, DC, said goodbye to its beloved giant pandas—Tian Tian, Mei Xiang, and Xiao Qi Ji—in November. The pandas arrived in 2000 under an agreement that they would eventually return to China. The zoo honored the pandas before they traveled to China on a FedEx plane. Zookeepers helped them adjust to their new home, a nature preserve where Mei Xiang and Tian Tian will enjoy "retirement," a zoo official said. Three-year-old Xiao Qi Ji will join a program to increase the number of pandas in the world.

Sharks solve a mystery in the ocean

Seagrass, an underwater plant, is an essential source of shelter, food, and oxygen for marine life. It also helps prevent global warming by storing carbon, a harmful gas. To shed light on how much seagrass there is at the bottom of the ocean, scientists conducted research with help from tiger sharks, which can dive deep and explore areas people can't reach. A group of sharks was fitted with cameras and satellite tracking tags. These showed that the sharks swam through at least 25,000 square miles of seagrass off the coast of the Bahamas—much more of the plant than researchers expected. They concluded, in fact, that there is more seagrass growing near the Bahamas than anywhere else on Earth. The findings increased the amount of seagrass known to exist by 41%.

Wildlife seen in unexpected place

A strip of land that runs between North and South Korea, setting a boundary between the countries, has unexpectedly become a wildlife haven. The land, known as the demilitarized zone (DMZ), was blocked off as a buffer zone between the two countries when the Korean War ended in 1953. Since then, human activity in the 150-mile-long area has been restricted, which has helped nature thrive. Scientists, who were allowed into the DMZ for research, found 6,168 species of wildlife living there. This includes golden eagles, mountain goats, wildcats, lizards, and otters, as well as flowers and herbs. Using remote cameras, they were also able to spot an Asiatic black bear cub, providing hope for this threatened species.

Returning to the Moon

An international race to the Moon is taking place. On February 22, the Odysseus robotic lander touched down — making it the first US vehicle on the Moon since 1972. In 2023, NASA, the US space agency, selected astronauts for its Artemis II mission, which will fly past the Moon in September 2025. NASA also unveiled a new spacesuit design for the crew of Artemis III. That mission is set to launch in 2026 and put humans on the Moon for the first time in more than 50 years.

The US is not the only country exploring the Moon and its environment. Scientists studying rocks collected by China's Chang'e-5 rover determined that the lunar surface could be covered in glass beads that contain water, which astronauts could use. Last August, millions of people tuned in to watch as India's Chandrayaan-3 lander touched down on the Moon. In September, Japan launched a spacecraft, called SLIM, which successfully landed on the Moon on January 19. After SLIM initially had problems generating the solar power it needed to operate, it was able to record data and take photos.

With so many nations heading for the lunar surface, the European Space Agency called for a special time zone for the Moon. This would make it simpler for multiple space agencies and astronauts to communicate as they travel to the Moon.

A mummy revealed

Scientists digitally "unwrapped" the 2,300-year-old mummy of an Egyptian teenager known as the "Golden Boy." His body was adorned with 49 amulets meant to protect him in the afterlife.

The mummy was discovered in 1916 in Egypt, but its two coffins were never opened. To look inside, scientists took hundreds of detailed computerized tomography (CT) scans and combined them into 3D images. This let them see the layers of the mummy without damaging it.

The boy's bones and teeth indicated that he was 4 feet 2 inches tall and between 14 and 15 years old. He wore a gold head mask and sandals, which were likely meant to help him walk in the afterlife. The amulets were made of gold or precious stones and included a golden scarab beetle near his heart and a golden leaf inside his mouth to help him speak in the afterlife.

How many T. rexes were there?

A study in Germany found that a total of 1.7 billion Tyrannosaurus rexes walked the Earth. This is down from 2021, when a different study estimated that 2.5 billion T. rexes existed.

In the first study, researchers said there were about 127,000 generations of the dinosaurs, with about 20,000 T. rexes each, for a total of 2.5 billion of them.

Scientists conducting the new study disagreed and thought there were fewer generations, with fewer T. rexes in each one. According to their calculations, there were about 90,000 generations with 19,000 dinosaurs each, totaling 1.7 billion.

Secrets found in Beethoven's hair

Nearly 200 years after the famous composer Ludwig van Beethoven died, scientists collected DNA from samples of his hair. The hair was taken from him after he died in 1827, a common practice at the time, and saved.

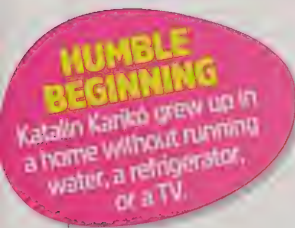

The team examined the DNA for clues to Beethoven's health problems, which included stomach and liver issues and hearing loss. They couldn't identify the cause of his hearing or stomach problems.

The team did spot signs of an increased risk of liver problems, however, and discovered that Beethoven was infected with hepatitis B, a virus that damages the liver. Those issues likely contributed to the composer's death.

Biochemist wins Nobel Prize

Scientist Katalin Karikó won the 2023 Nobel Prize in Physiology or Medicine in October for her research on mRNA technology that made the Covid-19 vaccines possible.

Born in Hungary, she is a biochemist and a professor at the University of Pennsylvania. She was awarded the prize with her colleague Drew Weissman. They collaborated on their research for 15 years despite questions about its value from some people in the science community. When the vaccines began being distributed, Karikó said, "I never doubted it would work."

She hopes to encourage a new generation. "I think about all the young girls who may become inspired by my story," she said.

Computer can "read" minds

A new technology generates text by scanning people's brains. It could help people who are unable to speak and improve our understanding of the brain.

In a study, people had their brain activity monitored while they listened to podcasts. Artificial intelligence (AI) matched specific brain activity with certain words spoken during the podcasts.

The AI then used what it learned to generate text based on brain activity. The results didn't always match the thoughts word for word. For example, when one subject heard "I don't have my driver's license yet," the AI came up with the sentence "She has not even started to learn to drive yet."

Brain scans have been used to study language and emotions.

Skier becomes best of all time

On March 11, 2023, American skier Mikaela Shiffrin earned her 87th career World Cup win, setting the record for the most World Cup titles by any skier, male or female, in history. Shiffrin, age 29, broke a record set by Ingemar Stenmark, a male Swedish skier who competed in the 1970s and 1980s. Eight days later, in her last race of the 2023 season, she won the giant slalom event at the alpine skiing World Cup Finals. With the victory, she set a new record for the most career women's giant slalom wins, with 21. It was the 138th time she stood on a World Cup podium, breaking a record set by retired American skier Lindsey Vonn.

When the 2024 World Cup season began in October, Shiffrin said there was "nothing left on my to-do list." Her new goal: "I want to see how far I can go in the sport." Before becoming injured in January, she had already racked up more wins this World Cup season, bringing her career totals to 95 wins and 150 trips to the podium. One victory was in a downhill race, which isn't even her specialty.

Chiefs repeat at Super Bowl

On February 11, the Kansas City Chiefs beat the San Francisco 49ers, 25–22, in overtime to win the Super Bowl at Allegiant Stadium in Las Vegas, Nevada. The Chiefs also won last year, and it's their third Super Bowl win in five years.

The contest began as a defensive battle, with a scoreless first quarter, but there were still several exciting moments throughout the game. At one point, 49ers kicker Jake Moody made a 55-yard field goal, the longest in Super Bowl history. Then 49ers quarterback Brock Purdy initiated a trick play that led to a touchdown. Later in the game, Chiefs kicker Harrison Butker made a 57-yard field goal, breaking Moody's record. By the end of the fourth quarter, the teams were tied, 19–19.

In overtime, the 49ers got the ball first and scored a field goal. Then, after a 75-yard drive, Chiefs quarterback Patrick Mahomes threw a game-winning touchdown pass. Following the game, Mahomes, age 28, was named the Super Bowl's Most Valuable Player for the third time in his career.

Rangers win exciting MLB season

The 2023 Major League Baseball season wrapped up on November 1, when the Texas Rangers defeated the Arizona Diamondbacks to win the World Series. The season will be known as one that ushered in new rules that made games faster and more exciting. A pitch clock was added to limit the time between throws, the size of bases was increased by three inches, and fielding teams always had to have at least two players on both sides of second base. As a result, games were shorter, more bases were stolen, and ballpark attendance was higher than it had been in recent years.

Spain takes Women's World Cup

In the final of the 2023 FIFA Women's World Cup, which was hosted by Australia and New Zealand, Spain beat England, 1–0. Olga Carmona scored the decisive goal for Spain in the match. Her teammate Aitana Bonmatí, who scored three goals at the tournament, won the Golden Ball award, which is given to the tournament's best player.

The World Cup ended up being a disappointing one for the US Women's National Team, who had won the previous two World Cups and were one of the favorites to win this year. They were eliminated by Sweden in a tough Round of 16 match. The game—which was tied, 0–0, at the end of regulation time and overtime—ended up being decided on penalty kicks.

Volleyball match sets world record

An event called Volleyball Day in Nebraska set a world record for attendance at a live women's sports competition. On August 30, 2023, 92,003 people filed into Memorial Stadium at the University of Nebraska–Lincoln to watch exhibition matches between four of the state's college teams. After demand for tickets crashed the system, the event later sold out in less than 48 hours.

The size of the crowd obliterated the previous attendance record (18,755) for a college volleyball game. It also broke the world record of 91,648 set in 2022 when Barcelona hosted Real Madrid for a UEFA Women's Champion League match and the American record of 90,185 set when the US beat China in the 1999 FIFA Women's World Cup in Los Angeles.

US tennis stars dazzle

Several tennis players have been showing their potential to take over from Serena Williams as the next big American star. Three women ended 2023 in the top 12, and five men made the top 25.

On September 9, Coco Gauff won the US Open, one of the four major tennis competitions known as the Grand Slams. It was her first Grand Slam title, and at age 19, she was the youngest American to win the US Open since Williams won at age 17 in 1999. Gauff was also the first American to win the event since 2017. In doubles, she and her partner, Jessica Pegula, lost in the quarterfinals, but when it was over, they were co-ranked as the world's top doubles players. A US pair had not been number one since 2012.

Also at the US Open, Madison Keys made the women's semifinals, while on the men's side, Ben Shelton, Frances Tiafoe, and Taylor Fritz made the quarterfinals. Shelton, who was unseeded at the tournament, advanced as far as the semis.

Another American standout was Christopher Eubanks. At 2023's Wimbledon, a Grand Slam held in England, he was unseeded and made it all the way to the quarterfinals.

Blockbuster for Barbie

One of the hottest tickets in entertainment, fashion, music, and food in 2023 was Barbie. The live-action movie based on Barbie dolls was released in July and smashed records in Hollywood. It had a bigger opening day and opening weekend than any other film last year, and to date, it has earned more than $1.4 billion at the worldwide box office. In the movie, Barbie (Margot Robbie) and Ken (Ryan Gosling) are changed after taking a trip from Barbieland into the real world. The film addresses issues such as gender roles in society and discovering your true identity. It was co-written by Greta Gerwig, who also directed the film.

It wasn't just fans who liked the movie. The film was nominated for a record-breaking 18 Critics Choice awards, and in January, it won six of those trophies, including for best comedy, best original screenplay, and best song. The film's soundtrack, Barbie: The Album, was nominated for a total of 11 Grammys and won three. Plus, the blockbuster movie was nominated for eight Academy Awards, including best picture.

Barbie mania extended beyond theaters. There were Barbie collaborations with fashion brands; Barbie-related foods at Burger King, Starbucks, and other shops; Barbie-related interfaces with Google and Spotify; and a home decorating show inspired by Barbie style. "I'm so grateful. I'm so amazed," Gerwig said of her film's success.

Disney turns 100

October marked the 100th anniversary of the Walt Disney Company. The celebration included a museum exhibition called Disney100, which featured original artwork, props and costumes, and theme park memorabilia from the Walt Disney Archives. The archives director, Becky Cline, told The Week Junior the goal was to share the items "with the people who love them the most, which are our fans."

In November, Disney released the animated musical Wish, which paid tribute to the company's movie history and recurring theme of wishing upon a star. Director Fawn Veerasunthorn said she wanted audiences to "never forget the spark of hope you have inside you that allows you to take action toward what you want in life."

The Hunger Games: The Ballad of Songbirds & Snakes is a prequel to the Hunger Games book and movie trilogy, set 64 years before protagonist Katniss Everdeen is introduced. The movie tells the origin story of teenager Coriolanus Snow, who becomes villainous President Snow in the rest of the series. Coriolanus, played by Tom Blyth, enters the 10th Annual Hunger Games and has to mentor a tribute named Lucy Gray Baird, played by Rachel Zegler. Like its sequels, the film had striking sets, costumes, and visual effects that wowed audiences as it earned more than $300 million.

When The Super Mario Bros. Movie premiered, it had the biggest-ever worldwide opening weekend of any animated film. Featuring plumber Mario (voiced by actor Chris Pratt, of Guardians of the Galaxy fame) and his brother Luigi (voiced by Charlie Day), the film tells the story of how they ended up in the Mushroom Kingdom. Co-directors Michael Jelenic and Aaron Horvath studied Mario games to come up with the look of the movie world. "We took these iconic elements and pushed the level of detail to make them look believable," Horvath said. The directors also said that at its heart, the movie is about perseverance. "We hope that, like Mario, if you have a dream in life, you keep going and never give up," they told The Week Junior.

Over five months, she played 56 shows in stadiums in 39 cities across Europe and North America—in front of about 2.7 million fans in all. The tour earned $579 million worldwide, making it the most successful tour of the singer's career. In December, she released Renaissance: A Film by Beyoncé, a concert documentary.

along with some of her classic hits, including "Run the World (Girls)." Some fans dressed in silver and wore cowboy hats, inspired by the album's visual components. In addition to her 21 backup dancers, Beyoncé was also joined several times by her daughter Blue Ivy, age 11.

Beyoncé had more to celebrate than the tour's success: The music icon also won her 32nd Grammy award in 2023, setting a record for the most Grammys received by any artist in history.

It was a legendary year for The Legend of Zelda: Tears of the Kingdom. The latest installment in the action/adventure Zelda series—and the first sequel since Breath of the Wild from 2017—was lauded for its rich storytelling and beautiful environments. It also earned several top honors. In addition to becoming the fastest-selling Nintendo game ever in the Americas, it won both the Golden Joystick Award for Nintendo Game of the Year and Best Action/Adventure Game in the 2023 Game Awards.

Spring Musical

The Performing Arts Department presented Little Shop of Horrors the 1960 Sci-Fi rock-n-roll musical with a hunger for humans. Seymour Krelborn is a meek and dejected assistant at a floral shop who happens upon a strange plant, which he affectionately names "Audrey II" after his crush at the shop. Little does he know that this strange and unusual plant will develop an unquenchable thirst for human blood.

As Audrey II grows bigger and meaner, the carnivorous plant promises limitless fame and fortune to Seymour, as long as he continues providing a fresh supply of blood. Just when it's too late, Seymour discovers Audrey II's extra-terrestrial origins and their true drive for world-domination.
